Reducing the number of libraries in apps would be a very good idea. They make apps very big and bloated without adding much value.

A close-up photograph of a dense, tangled mass of thin, flexible wires. The wires are in various colors, including bright blue, orange, white, and yellow. They are intertwined in a chaotic pattern, creating a complex web of lines. The background is dark and out of focus, making the colorful wires stand out. The lighting highlights the texture and curves of the wires.

How many dependencies?

The background of the slide is a dark, charcoal grey color. It is filled with numerous thin, translucent, and slightly curved lines that resemble optical fibers or glowing threads. These lines are scattered across the frame, with some appearing more sharply in focus than others, creating a sense of depth and movement. They vary in length and orientation, some pointing towards the top right and others towards the bottom left.

Project variables

Variables can be accidentally exposed in a job log, or maliciously sent to a third party server. The masked variable feature can help reduce the risk of accidentally exposing variable values, but is not a guaranteed method to prevent malicious users from accessing variables. How can I make my variables more secure?

Key ↑	Value	Environments	Actions
DOCKERHUB_TOKEN  Protected Masked Expanded	 	All (default)

> Pipeline trigger tokens

Trigger a pipeline for a branch or tag by generating a trigger token and using it with an API call. The token impersonates a user's project access and permissions. Learn more.

> Deploy freezes

Add a freeze period to prevent unintended releases during a period of time for a given environment. You must update the deployment jobs in `.gitlab-ci.yml` according to the deploy freezes added here. Learn more. Specify deploy freezes using cron syntax.
